Dear Mr. Wolfsdorf:

Human Resource Executive[®] and Lawdragon would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you on your selection as one of the nation's top corporate employment attorneys for 2011.

The competition, now in its fourth year, involved an exhaustive selection process handled jointly by HRE, which goes out to more than 75,000 top-ranking human resource executives, and Lawdragon, the Los Angeles-based networking site used by more than 300,000 leading lawyers and judges throughout the United States.

Earlier this year, HRE and Lawdragon solicited nominations for our list of the nation's Most Powerful Employment Attorneys representing corporate America and researched potential candidates in Lawdragon's extensive database. After careful vetting, we arrived at our top 200 selections. (In addition to the top 100 overall, 60 of those selected are specialists in areas such as immigration, employee benefits and ERISA, and labor law. Forty up-and-comers were also selected—recognizing lawyers likely to make the top 100 and specialty lists in the near future.) Our criteria included a number of attributes, such as recent headline clients or cases; proven leadership, either as a thought leader or as the chair of a firm's labor and employment group; affiliations and associations in peer-selected organizations; and other accomplishments, such as noteworthy publications and speaking circuits.

Those named to this prestigious list are included as part of HRE's June 16 cover story (a complimentary issue is included). The winners will also be posted at Lawdragon.com and HREOnline.com concurrently with the HRE print release.

Again, we commend you for the remarkable work you have done that has earned you a place on this exclusive list. Choosing among the highly talented and skilled lawyers who qualified as nominees was a nearly impossible task, and your selection carries with it a recognition of the tremendous responsibility shouldered by our greatest lawyers in this challenging economy and changing legislative environment. Never before has the task of counseling the intersection of businesses and their workers been more intense and more important.

Congratulations on being named one of the nation's most influential and powerful employment attorneys.

Sincerely,

David Shadovitz
